

THE RAILWAY

Even if you are more comfortable with other vehicles, always think about the future.

Rail transport is one of the best means of transport for transporting people and cargo due to the fact that the Catalan railway network is formed by a network of metro, tram and general train lines. The railway has many positive points, and you can transport all this over long, medium and small distances, this is because there is a metro and tram available to travel around the city, and when it is necessary to travel long distances outside the city we have the train. These are usually electric, depending on whether you are carrying, loads or people, because they are electric continues to pollute because the electricity they move with is not generated by a sustainable means because it must be expensive.

